For the music video, the song was re-recorded in many languages (Albanian, Swedish, Finnish, Portuguese and Chinese). The new arrangement included a "larger musical palette", as compared to the previous version. The songs were composed by JAM8, which is one of the band's two members. The song received positive reviews for its lyrics, with Niranjan Patki of India Today commenting "The narrative hinges on a man who doesn't get what he wants and loves the person he can't have". He further wrote "So the couple is never satisfied and finally split, leaving behind two split personalities—one who is comfortable with the status quo and the other who keeps thinking about how it could have been.". N. K. Premalatha of The Hindu found the lyrics "a combination of the broken hearted, broken happiness" as well as "the vulnerability of relationships and the soothing end of a love affair". Sangeetha Rajamani of The Hindu also found the songs "hauntingly beautiful" and "sublimely sensuous". Lyrics and controversy When the song was released, the singer quoted the song's lyrics "How we have tortured each other, How we have played a game of chess, Now there is a game of chess ahead, how will we settle it, if we both are lost in the game?", with the feminist organisation 'Fight against Feminism' accusing Aditi of "taking undue advantage of the victim-hood" of women. Aditi responded to the controversy by saying "I have been singing against patriarchal structures for the past 10 years and this is what my songs come across. They are feminist songs." Release and music video The song was released on 25 April 2011 as a single through Aditi Rao Hydari's YouTube channel on her official website. The music video for the song was released on the same day. For the video, Aditi Rao Hydari and JAM8 designed the costumes, background and outfits. She chose one of the song's line "My heart is a war zone", to be the inspiration for her costume. Aditi Rao Hydari said "the concept was about a person being able to hide behind a mask for most of the time, but when things are not going his way, he is open and transparent". The video features a broken relationship, as it follows the narrative of the song "How we have tortured each other, How we have played a game of chess, Now there is 82157476af
